Support the Collection for the Church in Latin America

In Luke's Gospel, Jesus reads a passage from the prophet Isaiah to announce that he has been sent "to proclaim liberty to captives" (Lk 4:18).

Unfortunately, human captivity remains a real challenge throughout the world. Human trafficking in Brazil, for example, is a serious problem that takes numerous forms: forced rural labor that amounts to modern-day slavery, trafficking to support prostitution, and forced marriages. The Church in Brazil is addressing this challenge by training leaders to publicize and denounce trafficking practices and to work with all levels of government to combat human trafficking.

In November 2018, the National Conference of Bishops of Brazil hosted a workshop in Brasília for 45 people, including bishops, priests, religious brothers and sisters, and lay people from 17 regions of the country. Participants attended presentations on the roots of human trafficking in Brazil, on sexual abuse and exploitation, and on the challenges inherent in the work to combat human trafficking. This valuable project, supported by the Collection for the Church in Latin America, trained regional leaders in Catholic social doctrine—especially teachings on human trafficking and human and environmental development—as well as Brazilian government and international anti-trafficking policies.

These regional leaders will now, in turn, conduct workshops to train 400 people as agents to address the causes of human trafficking in their own regions—such as the migration of vulnerable people from Venezuela—as well as to develop plans for prevention and victim assistance.

By supporting the Collection for the Church in Latin America, you are helping Brazilians fulfill their Gospel call to protect the vulnerable, defend human life and dignity, and address the causes of human trafficking throughout the country.
